

Jeopardy

Quick recap

Kimia and Layli organized a Jeopardy-style meeting where participants answered medical trivia questions for points, with Kimia managing participant engagement and Layli serving as scorekeeper and timekeeper. The game involved multiple rounds covering cardiovascular and neurological conditions, medications, and related terms, with participants helping each other and sharing knowledge throughout the session. The conversation ended with participants expressing interest in playing again, and all participants having the opportunity to participate in the game.

Summary

Jeopardy-Style Meeting Logistics

Kimia and Layli organized a Jeopardy-style meeting, noting that Stu was absent due to illness. They discussed logistics, including keeping track of participants' points using an Excel sheet and ensuring everyone had a turn to speak by calling on them alphabetically. Layli confirmed she would act as the scorekeeper and timekeeper, while Kimia would manage participant engagement. The meeting was set to begin five minutes later, and Kimia mentioned she and Layli had reviewed the questions.

Jeopardy-Style Game Session

The meeting began with Kimia explaining the rules of a Jeopardy-style game, where participants would select categories and answer questions for points. Layli described the game mechanics, including the option to phone a friend and the point distribution. As the game progressed, participants took turns answering questions, with some receiving help from others. The session was recorded, and Kimia and Layli managed the game, keeping track of scores and providing assistance when needed.

Medical Trivia Game Session

The group played a medical trivia game where participants answered questions about hypertension, blood thinners, cardiovascular disease, and strokes. The game involved multiple rounds where players could earn points by answering questions about various medical conditions and concepts. Participants helped each other with answers and discussed terms like coronary artery disease and COPD.

Medical Trivia Game Session

The group played a game where participants took turns answering medical-related questions for points. Kimia, Jeffrey, and Layli discussed splitting points after Jeffrey received a hint from Kelly. Rhonda asked about stroke signs and symptoms, which the group confirmed was correct. Emilio chose to answer a question about the heart, which he successfully answered. Michelle chose the "OTHER" category for $500 and correctly answered a question about neuroplasticity related to language skills. The game continued with Stephanie choosing to answer a question about the heart for $500.

Medical Trivia Game Session

The meeting involved a game where participants answered medical questions to earn points. Kimia led the game, ensuring everyone had a chance to answer, and participants discussed topics such as types of strokes, heart chambers, and cardiovascular conditions. Brendan shared his recent experience with strokes, and Gordon, who was participating remotely, successfully answered a question about a common name for a septal defect. The session concluded with Layli confirming that all participants had a chance to participate.

Medical Trivia Game Session

The group played a medical trivia game where participants took turns answering questions about cardiovascular and neurological conditions, medications, and related terms. The questions ranged from $100 to $500 in value, with topics including statins, proprioception, spasticity, and arrhythmia. Participants helped each other with answers and shared knowledge, with Shelly and Stephanie emerging as top performers. The game was organized by Kimia and was well-received by the group, who expressed interest in playing again in future meetings.